

Update: The SACC-USA/George Washington University Partnership

5 Swedish Clean Tech Co's Selected to Participate in "The MBA Global Consulting Practicum"

SACC-USA and George Washington University are very pleased to announce the five Swedish clean tech companies that have been selected to participate in this new exciting collaboration between GWU, SACC-USA and Swedish Clean tech companies in the forefront:

- ClimateWell
- IB Cleaning
- I-Tech
- Swebo Bioenergy
- Taurus Energy

22 well qualified MBA students are admitted to an interactive Global MBA Program where they during seven weeks will learn more about Swedish business culture and focus on how to promote Swedish clean tech companies in the US.

Anna Hjelm, Ph.D. Professorial Lecturer of International Business & GW-CIBER at GWU and also coordinator for this course explains: "It is a very exciting program where the students will work in groups closely with the companies as consultants; developing an advantage market strategy on how to enter or expand into the US market."

"SACC-USA is very excited to begin this collaboration with George Washington University. We see this as an excellent model to connect university know-how with industry expertise--in helping Swedish companies enter and accelerate on the U.S. market," said Gunilla Girardo, President, SACC-USA.

Peter Selemark, Partner of Salesgen and a member of SACC-USA, also applauds this initiative and sees continuous opportunities for other Swedish clean tech companies to take advantage of talented and engaged students' marketing skills from a top US university.